

June 10 • Two-year-old Ivy McLeod laughs while playing with Lucky the puppy outside their Chilliwack home. Ivy is a congenital bilateral amputee – her arms were not formed correctly while in the womb. There's no official name for it, so it's typically known as a "limb difference" because her limbs are different than what most people have. On April 6, the same day that Ivy's mother Vanessa put the call out on social media in search of a puppy born with a limb difference for the family, little Lucky was born just six minutes away. They brought her home on June 1.

Memorable images of 2021

B.C. was hit hard this year with atmospheric rivers, a heat dome and bitterly cold winter temperatures – all during an ongoing pandemic. Chilliwack was no exception to any of those newsmakers, but a lot of other stories made it into the pages of The Progress as well.

Here's a look at some of the images captured this year that tell community stories found only here in Chilliwack.

For more memorable photos of 2021, go to theprogress.com/community.

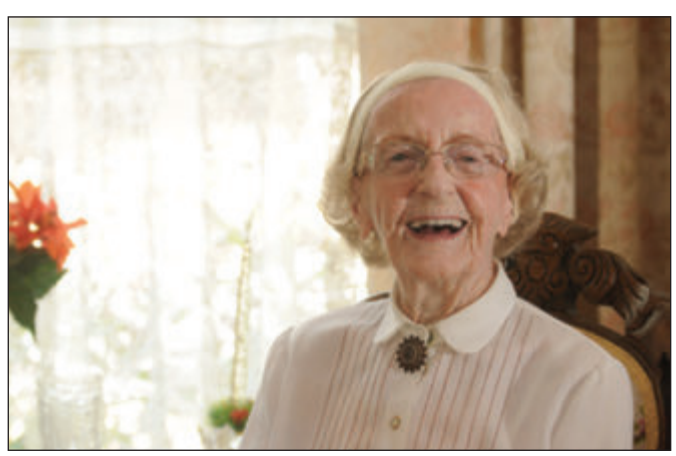

• Photos by Jenna Hauck •

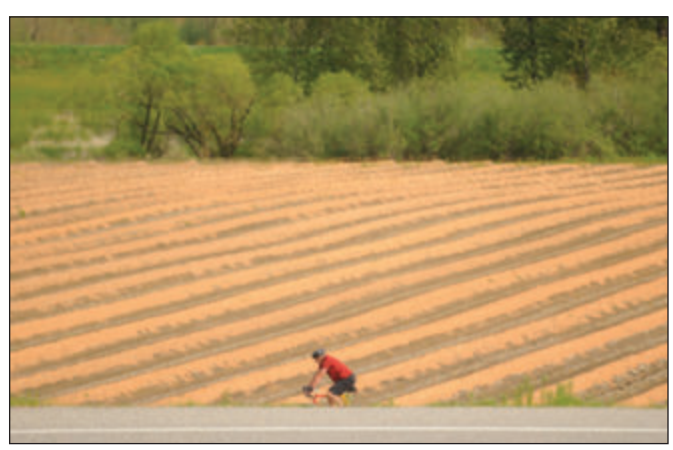

Sept. 10 • A Royal Canadian Air Force veteran salutes as the Canadian flag is lowered during the legion closing ceremony at the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 4 on Mary Street.

March 25 • Vincent Mikuska is seen reflected in the glass of one of the paintings in his solo show 'Shifting Perspectives 'at the Chilliwack Cultural Centre.

Aug. 12 • Hedy Sutulov celebrated her 107th birthday on Aug. 18.

April 29 • A cyclist heads west on Industrial Way in Chilliwack soaking up the springtime sun.